the British minister, but a Mahommedan Envoy will be sent to Cabul.

A Constantinople dispatch to the Daily News says that the Porte, in its reply to collective note of the powers, points out that article 24 of the treaty of Berlin merely expressed a wish for and authorized the powers to offer "mediation," not "arbitration." It declares that the decision of the recent Conference gives Greece more territory than did the protocol thirteen of the Berlin treaty, and indicates that the proposed cession includes positions which it is impossible for Turkey to surrender.

TUESDAY ......JULY 27, 1880.

JUDGE BUXTON.

Since 1866 Judge Buxton has occupied a seat upon the Superior Court Bench. He had not been known in political life before the war, and except by service in the State Conventions he has made no political record since the war. What he did in those bodies will be matter of reference hereafter. What we propose to speak of to-day is his conduct as a Judge. As Governor, a man should know no distinctions between men, white or black, high or low, rich or poor. The law is made for all, and should be administered without respect to person, fear of consequences, or hope of either political or pecuniary reward. A partisan Judge is not the man to make Governor. What sort of a Judge has Judge Buxton proved himself? We find answer ready to our hand in the Fayetteville Gazette of July 15, 1875. Judge Buxton was at that time a candidate for the State Convention. Then as now he was one of the bitterest Radicals in the State; but he wanted to be elected. Cumberland was close county, and he was running on his favorite dodge of "not a party question." His record as man and as Judge came up for discussion, and his record is not good.

"In looking up your record," (says BAR-THOLOMEW FULLER, Esq., writing to Judge Buxton through the Gazette, " prompted thereto by your self-complacent bow of introduction to the people of Cumberland county, I have found certain matters which may be effectively set forth under the title of 'Contrasts,' and which will serve at present as a reply to your remark that, being debarred 'from dabbling in the politics of the day,' you have 'strictly observed the proprieties of your position in this respect.' It is well that these last words were added, because our 'Contrasts' will show that there are other proprieties, which, if you had 'strictly observed them, would have placed your claims upon the people on higher grounds than you can ever hope now to occupy. Please bear in mind that I have conceded your right to demand and expect the support of the Radical party, and that I deny to you any claim upon Conservatives, either for then confidence or suffrages. In vindication of this assertion, let me invite your attention

CONTRAST NO. 1. At Spring Term, 1873, WASH. Mc-ARTHUR, a colored man, was indicted for an assault with a deadly weapon upon R. D. MELVIN, one of our most respectable white citizens. He was convicted on the second count, which was for an assault with intent to injure; you suspended the judgment, and he, not being able to pay the costs, was discharged as an insolvent, at the end of the short imprisonment required in such cases.

Shortly before this time, Amos and HENRY NUNNERY, two white men, were indicted for an assault with deadly weapon upon another white man. They pleaded guilty on the count of a common assault and battery; you fined them twenty-five dollars and costs each! CONTRAST NO. 2.

At January term, 1874, DOYLE BRY-ANT, a colored man, was indicted and convicted of an assault with a deadly weapon upon a white man, WM. MAULTSBY; you

At the same term W. W. SHEPHERD, a white man, was indicted for the same offence upon a colored man, and pleaded guilty; you fined him twenty dollars and suspended the judgment !

CONTRAST NO. 3. CATO POTTS, a colored man, has been frequently charged with stealing from merchants and others. He was indicted for largeny at Fall term, 1868; he submitted, and you suspended the judgment! He was indicted again for the same grade of crime, at Spring term, 1869, and you sentenced him for six months. Again he was indicted at the Spring term, 1872, and discharged, the prosecutor failing to appear -so runs the record. Again he was up for larceny at Spring term, 1873, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced for four months. This is CATO'S record.

At the same term with Ports' last sentence, MONBOE FAISON, a little colored boy, was indicted for stealing an axe, the property of DELILAH STEWART, a colored woman on Harrington Hill. He could not contend with the State, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to the penitentiary for two years! (This unfortunate boy was of the right color, but not the right age—he could not vote.—ED. GAZETTE.)

CONTRACT No. 4. ANTONY McDougald, a colored man, was indicted and tried at the January term, 1874, for an assault with a deadly weapon upon E. P. Powers, our town marshal. He was convicted of an assault with intent to kill; judgment of the court: that ANTONY McDougald be fined five cents and costs! [Nore:-This ever he appealed to them, said upon a "same ANTONY" drove your carriage last summer, with negro voters in it, to the man who reposes a generous confidence in result of the voting.]

ERS was made; you fined him five dollars

And though not strictly a contrast, yet the case of A. G. THORNTON will come in appropriately here as a FINALE.

A. G. THORNTON, who has long been the mainstay and prop of the Radical party in this county, and who can command more votes to-day than any ten men "of that ilk," was tried at spring term, 1871, upon an indictment, of which the second count charged him with "refusing and failing to surrender the tax-lists, on demand." to the town authorities. The trial was a long and tedious one, evidence was plentifully examined on both sides. and the jury found him guilty on this count. You granted a rule on the State to show cause why a new trial should not be granted, and on the argument of the rule you set the verdict aside, and granted a new trial, on the ground that the defendant had not entered his plea of "not guilty" on the record.

If I am credibly informed, you took the 'back-track" on this ruling at Harnett Court, which came on only three months after this decision. And the Supreme Court Reports show that at Richmond Court, in the case of the State vs. Mc-Millan and others, at fall term, 1872, the same point was raised before you. In that case you held correctly that the defendant had been tried "as upon the plea of not guilty," and you directed the plea to be entered after verdict, to make the record speak the truth. The defendant appealed to the Supreme Court, which affirmed your ruling; Judge READE, de livering the opinion, cites the case of State vs. Roberts, 2 Dev. & Bat. 540, as express authority, and says, "other author ities are abundant." You were asked to do the same thing in THORNTON's case, and you refused. He moved his trial to Moore, was acquitted, and the County of Cumberland had to pay the sum of five hundred and sixty dollars, the costs of the prosecution!"

SPEAK TO THE PEOPLE.

A newspaper cannot reach all the people of North Carolina. Before Governor JARVIS and his associates on the State ticket can be heard in many countres, the nominations will be made and the candidates for the Legislature in the field. Our people are slow to move even to the accomplishment of a great and universally recognized public good. Without the voice of the people clearly expressed in its favor no Legislature is likely to take the action absolutely necessary to the establishment of a proper system of Common Schools. Let us get at that voice; and it can be had if those who have the ear of the people will speak to them boldly and plainly. No man need fear to go before the people of North Carolina and advocate the expenditure of their money for a really useful public purpose.

It may be urged that the people are not prepared for the issue. We think this a mistake. But if it be not a mistake, is it usual for reformers to wait for a universal demand before they urge measures for the public good? Did LUTHER so ?-or if the topics with which he had to deal should be deemed too sacred in this connection-did Howard so, when he made his appeal in behalf of prison reformation? Did ROMILLY so, when he urged the melioration of the criminal law of England? Did CLINTON, a pioneer in another field, wait for the public to clamor for the construction of that great canal, which immortalized his own name and established forever the commercial supremacy of New York? Was, in fine, our own MOREHEAD prompted by the public voice to urge the building of our great central line of railroad; or was it his voice that aroused the people? In every instance great undertakings have been projected by one, or at most a few men, who have ultimately brought to their aid the popular support.

If it be urged that premature agitation will result in rejection, we answer that nothing is premature that vitally concerns the public good. Whatever has that bearing cannot too soon be presented to the popular mind. It is thus brought within the range of discussion, and discussion will demonstrate its utility. The public man ought to be the pioneer in whatever concerns the good of the State, and he is unworthy of support, if he be not willing to put his popularity to hazard to achieve a great public benefit. If he wait to be pressed forward to a great work, he mistakes his mission under popular institutions. The most ardent advocate of those institutions never dreamed that it was given to all men to originate great measures of public utility. But it is claimed, and experience vindicates the claim as just, that there is no subject within the domain of Government, upon which the people cannot, after it has undergone a full discussion, pronounce an enlightened, a sound and a safe judgment. No man in pursuit of a worthy subscribers evidently believe that we are object, need fear to throw himself upon the people for support. A distinguished son of our own State, the late Hon. JOHN A. GILMER. who throughout life commanded the suffrages of the people whenmemorable occasion: "The honest statespolls where you sat all day to watch the the liberality and justice of the people will ever be sustained, while the time-servers

MAINE'S POPULATION is fading away The census of this year will probably reduce the number of her Congressmen from five to four. In 1840 she had eight, but the census of 1850 cut that number down to six, and the next census reduced the number to five. Maine is not a progressive State, even with such boastful propressionists as BLAINE and FRYE in charge of public affairs. These men have been abusing the South for backwardness for years, yet there is not a Southern State which will not make a better showing than Maine, when the figures of the present census are published.

NEW YORK CORRESPONDENCE.

[Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

NEW YORK, July 24, 1880. EDITOR NEWS:-I am indebted to Mr H. Ruffin Horne, of Fayetteville, for kindly remembrance in the shape of several boxes of beautiful grapes, grown at Tokay, the large vineyard established in that neighborhood twenty or thirty years ago by his deceased uncle, so kindly remembered under his appropriate sobriquet of "Jolly" Horne, whose outrageous treatment by Sherman's bummers is supposed to have caused his premature death. It is pleasant to see such an evidence of the beautiful production of that vineyard, which I trust flourishing and will flourish till our Cumberland sand-hills shall rival the vineclad hills of France. That wine making will eventually become a leading business in North Carolina, and especially in the eastern section of the State, I have always felt assured. Several of the finest varieties of grapes are indigenous there, including the Scuppernong, the Mish, the Catawba, and the Isabella, not to mention the Bullace, the small summer grape, and other less noted varieties.

It is stated by the Tribune that Judge Swayne denies that he ever gave such an $5,000 bribe as the papers have attributed to him, and which I quoted in a late letter to THE NEWS. Well, if he did not, he ought to have done so, provided the case was ever before the Supreme Court, for the alleged opinion fits the case precisely. But the reason given by Judge Swayne to the Tribune is a curious one: "General Garfield is a personal friend of mine, and I have the highest confidence in his integrity." As if personal friendship had aught to do with the administration of law and justice! I suppose you have not forgotten the incident so graphically related to us some ten years ago by that six foot three inches man S—, from whom we used to buy ink. He said that a man in his office insulted him on some occasion that he had a little mallet in his hand with which he tapped the fellow gently on the head and knocked him down-(which we could well believe, looking at his powerful frame);—that the fellow had him indicted for assault and battery; that when he went to court on the day of trial, the Judge saw him and called out, "Why, S-, what are you doing here?" "Oh, nothing, Judge, but that Jones there insulted me, and I knocked him down with a little mallet. What must I pay, Judge?" "Pay!" indignantly exclaimed the Judge. "Nothing! Go about your business." "The Judge was a friend of mine." said S--. Just such a friend Swayne appears to be to Garfield.

Dr. Phillips again tempted me to cu business and spend another afternoon in sight-seeing, and inhaling the fresh air out of the city. This time we went to Greenwood Cemetery, which, always beautiful, never looked more beautiful than now. We happened to fall into the care of the same Irishman who drove me the rounds the last time I was there, and whose peculiar style of oratory in pointing out the notable monuments I mentioned then in a letter to your paper. It is not possible to preserve one's gravity in listening to him. and I suspect that he has been employed in the cemetery, as he said he had been for thirty years past, to neutralize the grave influences of the place upon the minds of visitors. There are solemn scenes all about, and the Irishman means to b solemn too, but it isn't in his nature. I have never heard anything like it since the days of wax figures in a show, when the exhibitor would tell off the names and recite the qualities of his "figgers." Long live Paddy, to give us something to laugh at, even in Greenwood. There were fewer visitors, and fewer funerals, than I ever

The Board of Trade Bender.

|Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.] MOREHEAD CITY, July 25, 1880.

EDITOR NEWS:-The Board of Trade excursion is a big success. The weather is perfect and all hands are well and in the water. The trip down was delightful. I'll write about it to-morrow, but just now, believe it was Hamlet said "here's met more attractive." Whether he said it or not, it was a good thing to say and it fits the present occasion exactly.

ROBESON NOTES :-

Wakulla, July 24, 1880.—This section now at this writing, receiving a good rain: the first in six weeks, save a few small showers. Crops are of course somewhat damaged, but not as much as might be supposed from the length of the drought.

On Tuesday the 20th inst., number of persons from this and adjoining sections assembled at Red Springs and spent a very pleasant day. Had some very sweet music on stringed instruments by some young men of this neighborhood (save one who is from Bladen,) which contributed to the enjoyment of the occasion. There were several in attendance from other counties; in fact the pic-nic was gotten up for the visitors in the neighborhood, but owing to a misunderstanding there was one at Shoe Heel the able, but the two places were near enough to divide the crowd.

There was another pic-nic at Red Springs yesterday, which was also very pleasant and well attended. We hear of several others in contemplation. It is a nice place for pic-nics; cool and shady; comfortable seats; and the best water in the State is a perfect panacea for all diseases and quite palatable besides. Prof. Shaw had a fine chool there.

Miss Alice McBryde of Shoe Heel was married in the Presbyterian Church Thursday night 22d inst., to Mr. Austin, of Polkton. There was a large number present to witness the ceremony.

A Hancock-Jarvis' Club has been organized at Shoe Heel. I see it predicted that Robeson will give at least four hundred Democratic majority and we find every one determined to share the victory. Shoe Heel has a Hancock-English-Jarvis, &c., flag, the pole perhaps the tallest in the State; they never do anything by

DUPLIN COUNTY NOTES :-

Kenansville, July 24.—Had a grand time to-day. We unfurled the Hancock Jarvis and Shackelford flag. Col. Kenan. our honored countyman, made us a capital speech, and the campaign in old Duplin opens with enthusiasm.

Crops never looked better, but the cot-

We expect Col. Polk to deliver an ad-

"But the proprietor of this paper told me who wrote the 'leader yesterday," continued the caller. "Indeed," quoth the editor; "who was it?"
"He said he wrote it himself." "In that case," answered the editor quietly, "he did not violate the rule. He merely lied."

Let Us Hold Our Heads Up.

WHAT AN EASTERN FARMER THINKS.

We rejoice in the opinion that North Carolina, having gone through fifteen years of sorrow is now certainly and steadily attaining A SOLID PROSPERITY.

The year 1880 if there be no disaster will yield to the farmers the heaviest crop of all kinds ever made in the State. What a glorious condition to have our people blessed with plenty.

OUR LANDS on an average are being permanently in roved rather than worn out. OUR TOWNS are enlarging, in many cases very rapidly and we see all over the State better farms better buildings, better fences, better orchards and a better appearance in all re-

OUR MERCHANTS. manufacturers and mechanics are doing well. All employers obtain labor for less than the interest on the purchase of slaves before the war.

We are enlarging old industries and engaging profitably in branches entirely new. Rice crops grow in new fields peanuts are extensively cultivated, and a man of forty years ago would be astonished to see our shipments of iced fish, fruits, vegetables, berries, medicinal plants, minerals and many other articles.

The steam engine is at work in ginning grinding, sawing, and manufacturing in every neighborhood of North Carolina How was it thirty years ago?

We have the purest air and best water in the world, two things constituting nine tenths of human comfort and enjoyment Our people are not compelled to fi panic-stricken from cholera, small-pox, ye low fever and other scourges. We have the health that God gave us. Better drainage and more precautions are purifying into health our few malarial sections Our mountain regions are resorted to for health by thousands from all parts of the

With an extended sea border, with our magnificent navigable sounds and rivers with our extensive and extending railways, our canals, plank-roads and highways, transportation is easy, cheap and wonderfully convenient. In the west corn sells at ten ents a bushel for want of these things.

THE EVILS THAT WE HAVE NOT are as many as the blessings that we have. We have no savages in our midst or on our border to scalp and burn and murder; no jungles full of deadly wild beasts : no awful earthquakes and volcanoes to make our lives full of dread all the time; no army worm nor insects to destroy every green and living thing; no freshets seventy miles wide as in the Mississippi; no deserts like Sahara; no overflowing from broken dikes as in Holland; no communism, socialism, nihilism or other such villainv as in we have, but, thank God, our people are honest enough to punish them. Let us remember that our blessings, like the air we breathe, are so common that they are not appreciated by us.

Our people are adjusting themselves to their situation. The men who were ruined by the war have in most cases died. Old debts, insolvencies, and their consequent litigation have pretty much passed away. We have more economy, more thrift, more industry. Drunken boys are no longer the aristocrats of society. Our girls are mixing utility with their radiant beauty. The hurly burly of the war and the confusion after it have passed away and every body has got to his place. We are grati-fied at the new railroads being built and new works of outward show. But we are more gratified to know that in pretty much every household of North Caroling a solid improvement in every respect is taking place. People live inside their means. They have ceased to look mournfully into the past and are going forward

A Pendulum Experiment.

[From the New York Times. 1 The large old-fashioned clock of the last century, that used to stand in the corner of the "sitting-room," and was large enough to contain an entire small boy when an impending parent with a switch suggested the propriety of flight and conces has become nearly extinct. A few of these clocks still tick in secluded country places and occasionally a collector of bric-aboasts the possession of one of them, but they have been almost entirely superseded by the small and portable clock which is one of the staple productions of Connec-

Mr. McIlvaine, of North-by-West Hamy ton—a small village situated in the neigh borhood of the four cardinal point Hamp tons, Long Island—is sufficiently fortunate to be the owner of an old-fashioned clock of great miscellaneous merits. In addition to telling the hour of the day, it tells the day of the week, the time of the rising of the sun and moon, the state of the tide. the text of last Sunday's sermon, the age and sex of the children, and other facts too numerous to mention. In fact, it is an encyclopedic clock, and to sit in front of it and watch it six hours a day would be an excellent method of obtaining a liberal education.

Mr. McIlvaine's family consists of himself, his daughter and his son, the latter being aged a little over 12 years, and being a boy with a painful fondness for scientific experiments. While Mr. McIlvaine is a most estimable man, it must be confessed that he is somewhat arbitrary in his ways, and it may be cited in proof thereof that he has made a domestic law that all persons who come to visit his daughter shall go home at or before half-past ten o'clock. This is rather trying to Miss McIlvaine, since, as all rural ladies know, the rural lover is shy during the day time and the early evening, and rarely bites freely, to use an angling metaphor, until after eleven o'clock. Of course, the chances of catching an eligible husband are greatly lessened when a domestic game law forbids the prosecution of the sport after half-past ten. Nevertheless, as Miss McIlvaine was an obedient daughter, she obeyed the parental command, and warned all young men off the premises when the fatal hour arrived. If a wicked and deceitful generation asks why she did not turn back the hands of the clock when she had a desirable young man in the parlor, it may be answered that she scorned deception, and that her father kept the glass which covered the face of the clock carefully locked. Master McIlvaine attended school, and as a painful consequence, acquired a good deal of scientific information. Although this was, of course, deplorable, it would have been much less injurious to the peace of the community had Master McIlvaine been less ingenious than he was. It was the way in which he applied his scientific information that made him a terror to all learned that eggs sufficiently matured to fit them for political purposes contain sulphureted hydrogen gas, he conceived the plan of supplying the town with illuminat-ing gas, and began a system of operations with the aid of six dozen of the local grocer's last year's eggs, which threatened to temporarily render the East End of Long Island uninhabitable, except by persons fortified with hay-fever. This dangerous boy was one day taught by a de praved scientific book that the speed of clock varies as the length of the pendulum That very evening, before going to bed, he lengthened the pendulum of his father's clock nearly two feet, not with any deliberate malice, but merely in order to try scientific experiment.

At eight o'clock that evening young Mr. Slocum called on Miss McIlvaine much to her pleasure, since she was confi dent that his capture was a mere question of time. A little later old Mr. McIlvaine looked into the room, and, glancing at the clock, remarked that he was going to bed Absorbed in their conversation, the young people, when they were left to themselves, took little note of time, until it suddenly occurred to Miss McIlvaine that it must be nearly half-past ten. Hurriedly releasing herself, she turned up the lamp, and to her astonishment found that it was only nine. Mr. Slocum admitted, too, that he was surprised to find that it was no later. but expressed much delight at the prospect of further conversation.

After a prolonged period of conversational bliss, the young lady again turned up the light, and found that it was only half-past nine. Mr. Slocum said that he would undergo repairs with a large needle and a skein of worsted if he didn't think that they had "sot and sot for mor'n six hours." At this implication that he found the evening a tedious one, Miss McIlvaine became indignant, and a quarrel ensued, which consumed a good deal of time before peace was restored. Conversation was resumed, but after a time both Mr. Slocum and Miss Mcllvaine became decidedly sleepy. In fact, each charged the other with having actually failen asleep, and a new quarrel seemed at one time imminent. Mr. Slocum felt that it was a point of honor not to take his leave before half-past ten, but he began to wish that the evening would come to an end. When for the third time the lamp was turned up and the clock said that it was only ten, he insisted that it was wrong. Miss McIlvaine thereupon said that he was a brute, and that a man who could not sit two hours with a young lady did not de serve to be treated with civility. For the rest of the evening the lovers occupied seats several feet removed from one another, and the light was no longer turned down. From time to time they glanced at the clock, which ticked with awful solemnity, though its hands crept with exasperating slowness. At intervals they slept in their chairs, and when Mr. Slocum, waking from his last brief nap, saw that at last halfpast ten had arrived, he felt profoundly grateful, and, arousing Miss McIlvaine with a gentle shake, informed her that he didn't know but what he might as well be

As he approached the front door, accom panied by his fair though but partially awakened friend, the dread sound of parental boots smote his ear. He saw, to his horror, old Mr. McIlvaine, fully dressed, descending the stairs, and the next million dollars and upward. The city is one of the great banking centres of the globe. Mr. Slocum's feelings we permanently outraged, and it is hardy probable that he will ever again expose himself to the treachery of the Mellvain clock. A BOLD BAD BABY.—Last evening as a quiet and peaceable young gentleman was walking up Hillsboro street he was violently assaulted by a baby carriage, pro-pelled by an African damsel. It seemed at first that this diabolical attempt on the life of an unoffending citizen was the result only of the malignant disposition of the sun-burnt infant propeller; but it needed only a second glance to show that the assault really emanated from the cunning brain of the autocrat who lay at his ease, sucking an imperial thumb, and careless what shin might be barked by his chariot wheels. He even pretended to be asleep; but it was easy to detect the leer of triumph with which he witnessed the dark deeds of his sable minion. But we do not complain. We will never complain. Though every street in town may be blocked with baby carriages; though the feet and legs of peaceful citizens may serve as targets to lawless marauders armed with these horrible weapons; though we may be compelled to spend our entire private fortune in Arnica liniment, and waste our substance by tearing up our shirts for bandages; though the cellars of Fayetteville street may be filled with unfortunate foot passengers, striving to escape the remorseless nurse-girl; in short, though the baby carriage may become type of every sort of unprovoked violence and lawless oppression, we will not complain. But we desire to say one word. The sidewalks on Fayetteville street are too narrow. Only yesterday, while five baby carriages were passing along that thoroughfare, there was only room for four abreast and one had to follow in the rear. Not only were the feelings of the young gentleman in the rear carriage so lacerated by his enforced separation from his lady love that his big toe ceased to interest him, but the dusky daughter of Ham, who furnished the motive power, was debarred from improving conversation with the other nurses. progress of the colored race. It is a subject in which all should be interested, for the thousands of colored men in the State are as much citizens as if they were white; and no State can afford to neglect any means looking to the material, mental, or moral advancement of its

The managers hope to make the fair a grand success. We give them our best wishes to that end.

MAYOR'S COURT.-Three drunks cost the owners of these expensive luxuries 24 hours and $2.25 each, making an average of $2.35 each (counting a loafer's twenty four hours worth 10 cents); not to spea of the heads they had the next morning A young gentleman's screams caused his supposed assailant to be arrested, but on investigation it was found to be a case of "come home with me now," the assailant being an elder, and the assailed a younger brother whose presence at home was considered desirable. Case dismissed. Judgment of the court "served him right."

TROT OUT YOUR OLD WOMEN.-Some places make a fuss as soon as they find a person 90 years old; but Raleigh don't. On Saturday there was an old colored woman, walking along the street without any brass band or other mark of her importance, just like anybody else in fact, who said she was 106 years old and looked 166, and stranger still she didn't nurse George Washington or any of those boys. She was carrying a package of groceries and didn't ask any odds of anybody.

GLEANINGS FROM STATE EXCHANGES.

The Wilmington Star has better ac counts of Bishop Atkinson's health.

The Lexington Exchange sums up the census returns for Davidson and finds 20,-363 people in the county. In 1870 the population was 17,414; increase, rather more than 15 per cent.

"An' now let me articulate my specific expreshuns toward the gloriferous incades ence that has been my beacon light through de omniverous darkness enshrouding the twilighterous pathway of the colored man in dis kentry. " ATTARW GREATA

Under a suspension of the rules the Judge was made a member, and his proposition was accepted by telegraph. The Judge has long been known in the Tar-Heel State as "The Dusky Leviathan," and is immense on an oration. In delivering the Fourth of July address in Danbury he closed as follows: The Charlotte Observer tells of the first cotton factory in the South. It "was built on Mill Branch, in Lincoln county in the year 1815, by Michael Schenck, grandfather of Judge David Schenck. It must have been a miniature affair, judging from the size of the stream on which the factory was built. It was the pioneer industry in that line in the Southern country. As the demands on the capacity of the factory increased it was removed to South Fork. It was burnt in 1860. A part of the frame work of the old factory building is still standing to mark the historic spot, and is the property of Mrs. McDaniels, a daughter of Michael Schenck. Mr. Schenck moved to Lincoln county from Lancaster county, Pa. The machinery was shipped from Providence, R. I. One of the old spindles, which is in possession of Judge Schenck, was recently exhibited in this office."

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS:-

Fifty western counties of Kansas have a population of over 335,000, an increase of over 275,000 since 1870. The census of the entire State will probably show a population of 1,000,000.

The census report for the second supervisor's district in Virginia, twenty counties, shows a total population of 406,149, about one-fourth the population of the State. The census shows heavy gains in the past few years.

Secretary Thompson says, in reply to newspaper criticisms, that our navy is no baby. The press will heartily agree with him; the navy outgrew its babyhood long ago; then it passed its prime and now it is in the extreme decrepitude of neglected old age, so far as its constitution depends upon its ships and their condition.

Last week's weekly statement of the New York Associated Banks shows the following changes: Loans increase $2,208,-300; specie decrease $1,565,600; legal tenders decrease $564,200; deposits decrease $968,500; circulation decrease $25,-200; reserve decrease $1,878,675. The banks now hold $16,592,600 in excess of legal requirements.

Admiral Wyman, who has been investigating alleged indignities to the American flag by Spanish cruisers, seems to be satisfied that the vessels fired upon were within a marine league of shore, and consequently with Spanish jurisdiction. If proof upon this point is considered sufficient by the Cabinet our navy will once again be spared the humiliation of exposing to the world its weakness.

preparation of a speech which he will deliver the latter part of August, or early in September, in Ohio or Indiana. The speech will of course be largely financial. and will present the best argument possible from a financial standpoint for the continuance of the Republican party in power during the next four years.

Norfolk, Va., continues rapid strides as cotton port. The receipts of cotton at the principal ports since September 1 place Norfolk second on the list, with 727,754 bales. New Orleans leading with 1,474, 387, and Savannah following with 725,554 Charleston 479,337, Galveston 470,229 and Mobile 352,110 bales. Of Norfolk's receipts 251,186 bales were exported direct to Europe, the rest having gone coastwise on local transactions or orders from manu-

A patriotic and somewhat sentimental citizen has been to President Hayes with design for a new national flag, which he considers the present situation war-rants. On a blue field (blue being the color of constancy) he would have a white heart, symbolic of the purity of American loyalty, and in the heart he would have a lion and lamb lying down together. Paint the lamb inside the lion and the flag may suit the fancied lion of the North.

The first duel in the United States was fought at Plymouth, Mass., on the 18th of June, 1821, between Edward Doty and Edward Leicester, two servants, both of whom were wounded. For this outrage they were sentenced to the punishment of having their heads and feet tied together. and lying thus for twenty-four hours without food or drink. After suffering, however, in that painful posture an hour, at their masters' intercession and their own humble request, with the promise of amendment, they were released by the Governor.

The Turks Deflant.

By cable to the Herald, 25th inst. LONDON, July 24.—A dispatch to the Times from Constantinople says:—"All that the Sultan fears is the danger of a foreign fleet appearing before the capital; and on this point he has been reassured by his naval authorities, who declare that at the present moment no fleet could force the Dardanelles without losing a large proportion of its ships, and that in a few days the defences may be increased a hundred fold by means of torpedoes. General Blum Pacha, who has just returned from a tour of inspection, recommends the construction of ten new forts on the Straits." A

"The Turks believe they have nothing to fear from the military preparations of the Greeks, as the Greeks' own statistics state that they can only bring 35,000 men into the field. The Turks are equally indiffer-ent to the proposed naval demonstration by the Powers in Turkish waters, because they are convinced that a fleet could do them very little injury." It is stated at Athens that the Greek Government will shortly call out the reserves.

No Double Dealing About It.

[From the New York Sun.] Mr. Stanley Matthews is reported as saying that those who know the particulars of the DeGolyer contract and the Credit Mobilier case, know that when Gen. Garfield is accused of double dealing in these matters the accusation is not true. We think Mr. Matthews is right. The transaction was perfectly simple; Garfield was a member of Congress: he sold his official influence and took his pay. We do not see how anything could be more simple. There was no double dealing whatever. None was required. It was only bargain and sale. The other parties had money and wanted Congressional influence; Garfield had Congressional influence and wanted money. So they

There can be no question about the simplicity of the transaction. What is disputed is its morality and legality. Mr. Matthews evidently understands the true state of these cases. They were as simple as the dealings of the old Tweed Ring.

The Regular Way of it.

[From the Detroit Free Press.] John and Mary, husband and wife, appeared on the wharf yesterday morning to go on an excursion. They seemed a happy and contented pair, and nothing went Secretary Sherman during the next two wrong until they got aboard the boat. Then John wanted to sit on the bow, and his wife wanted to stay on the stern, and it wasn't two minutes before he took the dinner-basket on his arm and marched down stairs, telling her she could take her excursion on an empty stomach. She marched after him, and, there was a row on the wharf.

The dinner basket was upset. And pickles rolled around; And hard-boiled eggs they went to smash, And sweet cake did abound.

When Mary's bonnet had been torn to strings, and John's face looked like a gridiron, along came an officer and gave them a dry land excursion. Both were walked out together. They were still mad, and they didn't seem to know each other-"Rather a poor way to keep cool," observed his Honor as he looked from one to the other.

"No woman can tell me where I mus or must not sit!" growled John. "And no man can make a slave of me!

retorted Mary. "It was all your fault!"

"You know better!" "Judge," said the man as he swallowed lump in his throat, "that woman was spiling for a fight long enough before we left home. She tore up two of my fine shirts because I wouldn't use a pin in place of a button." "And what did you do? When I asked you to split a few sticks of wood you threw the axe across the yard and called me such names as I dare not repeat here!"

"Peace, be still!" commanded the court. "Such family fights as take place within the sacred confines of the household I do not meddle with, but this was a row in front of 2,000 people and I can't overlook

"Judge, give me a divorce!" pleaded

"Don't you do it-give it to me!" added

"I don't care how soon you both have one, but you must go elsewhere. Husbands and wives who can't agree had best keep too far apart to quarrel. John, you'll have to pay the fine for both. It is an even $10."

"I'll pay, but I'll never live with her another day." "And who wants you to? We'll go right home and divide the things!" They went out together, and ere this are probably keeping house in different rooms and have had a fight as to who shall pay the water tax.

Maine's Mechanism.

[From the New York World.] During the first summer after the 'Maine law" took effect having came on, and the usual accession to the force of farm hands came with it. But the work went on slowly. There was no spirit in it—none at least of that kind of spirit which the men were accustomed to. The sale of rum was limited to town agents, and they were permitted to sell only for medical and mechanical purposes. After a day's dissatisfied watching of the work
"Uncle Dan'l" said: "Hitch up the horse,
William, and take a couple of jugs down to the town agency and get three gallons of rum. If Deacon Stillwell asks you what it's for, tell him its for "mechanical purposes.'" The nephew did as he was bid, and when he came to the agency boldly asked the agent, a stern-faced Baptist deacon, for the rum. The deacon looked at him over his spectacles and ever since. It starts out on the third year asked him who and what it was for. "It's for Uncle Dan'l and mechanical purton, in Warren, says that she too has been of duty and been blest, and introduces seventeen pairs for Davidson's embrace.

Kiln club the secretary announced that Judge Miles Cox, of Danbury, Stokes Co., N. C., had made application to join the club, and had expressed his desire to declub, and had expressed his desire to declub.

to the waiting messenger: "Who's your uncle got to do his having this year?" "The Ellises," was the response. "Will, said the deacon, as he shoved the jugs under the seat, "you tell him he'll need more rum."

SMITH, С. J.:-La Fontaine vs. Southern Underwriters' Association. Wake. Reversed. When parties or witnesses are examined before a referee appointed by the court under supplementary proceedings, and contumaciously refuse to answer questions, upon the same being reported to the Superior Court, such persons can be attached for disobedience by that court.

In examinations under these proceedings, a party or witness cannot refuse to answer a question on the ground that his answer might criminate him, for his answers cannot be used against him in any criminal proceeding whatever, by the terms of the statute, and thus his constitutional right not to "be compelled to give evidence against himself" is maintained intact and full.

Hollingsworth vs. Harman. Pender.

Dismissed. Chapter 31, section 57, paragraph 16 of Revised Code, which provides that attorneys at law shall file powers of attorney when required to do so by opposing side, is still in force.

When in an action against a married woman and her husband, upon the case coming to the Supreme Court on their appeal, the plaintiff's counsel produces in court an instrument executed by both husband and wife, to which is appended the certificate of a Probate Judge that the wife had been privily examined, asking that the action may be dismissed, and stating that the subject matter of the suit had been compromised, the action will be dismissed.

Such an instrument will be acted upon by the court, although not registered, if it is admitted to be genuine.

Vick vs. Smith. Cumberland. Re versed.

If a note be given for another note secured by mortgage the substituted note is secured by the mortgage unless the contrary is intended by the parties, and the burden of proving a contrary intention rests on the debtor.

If the debtor does not apply a payment at the time of making it, the creditor can make the application; if neither makes the application the law appropriates it to the most precarious debt.

In regard to running accounts "the first money paid is the first money paid out."

Taylor vs. Taylor. Polk. Affirmed.

An execution issued from one county void unless it has the seal of the court from which it issues upon it, and a sale made in 1869 under such an execution held to be a nullity.

State vs. Bryant. Wake. Reversed. A defendant who, upon a proceeding in bastardy, is adjudged to be the father of an illegitimate child cannot be discharged under the insolvent laws until he has remained in prison for twenty days. The Solicitor has no right to consent to defendant's discharge nor the Judge the power to dispense with the imprisonment. When defendant takes the insolvent debtor's oath it is error to require the county to pay the mother of the child the fifty dollars required of the putative father under the bastardy laws.

Bastardy proceedings being civil actions, when the defendant is insolvent and discharged the county is liable for the costs of the State, but not for the Solicitor's fees or any part thereof nor for the costs of the defendant.

Johnson vs. Pate. Craven. Affirmed.

A complaint in an action to recover land is good on demurrer, although it does not set out the nature of plaintiff's title, does not allege ouster by defendant, or a demand for the possession by plaintiff, or a notice by him to defendant to quit possession, or that plaintiff has been in possession within twenty years before action was brought.

A demurrer based upon these grounds is frivolous, and upon being overruled judgment should be rendered for plaintiff for possession of the land claimed.

DILLARD, J.:

Tyson vs. Walston. Pitt. Reversed. A testator after devising and bequeathing certain property to his sons, devised his home place and the residue of his estate, after certain legacies, to his three daughters to be held by them in common and undivided until the full age of the youngest; until which event the daughters were to live on the land, to be educated and supported out of the income thereof which remained after deducting from the gross sales of the crops raised the expenses of producing the same.

The will provided that the land should be under the management of the guardians of his daughters who were appointed by the will, and authorized them from time to time to purchase stock, farming implements, &c., and to employ laborers, for the purpose of running and keeping up the farm.

The same persons were appointed executors of the will and guardians of the daughters. The plaintiff sues for work and labor done upon the land devised to the daughters, at the instance of one of the executors after he had purchased the shares of two of the daughters.

Held, That the plaintiff's claim cannot be collected out of testator's estate, for no executor can be rendered liable in his representative capacity on a debt contracted after testator's death. But that the liability rested on the executor individually. He being allowed to charge the estate of the remaining daughter, whose guardian he was, with one-third thereof.

Peterson vs. Vann. Sampson. Affirmed.
Where in a proceeding, in the old county Courts, by an administrator against the heirs of his intestate seeking to make real estate assets, the record showed entries of the several steps in the cause, but no formal orders and judgments were actually formed, no motion can be made in the cause to set it aside, but a party seeking to set it aside must begin an action in the Superior Court by summons.

A decree which disposes of the action, but does not adjudge upon the matter of costs, is nevertheless to be considered as

Brown vs. C. C. R. R. Co. Lincoln. Affirmed.

Defendant railroad was in the hands of receivers appointed by the Superior Court of New Hanover. Plaintiff sued for damages caused by the obstruction of a stream by the track of the road and demanded an order that the nuisance be abated. The jury assessed his damages at $25 per

Held: Not error to refuse an order for abatement when the damage suffered by plaintiff was so small, and further, that such an order could not issue from any other court of equal jurisdiction while the road remained in the hands of the receivers appointed by a Superior Court.

Financial Chronicle Market Reports.

NEW YORK, July 24, 1880. The cotton receipts of last week were 13,148 bales; since September 1st, 4,880,043 an increase over 1879 of 446,3 0 bales. The exports were 26,207 bales; since September 1st, 3,767,733, an increase of 387,791 bales. The stock, 208,183 bales, an increase of 75,078 bales. The visible supply, 1,700,135 bales, an increase of 367,350 over 1879, 215, 493 over 1878, and a decrease of 411,406 from 1877. Of this supply, 1,069,845 American, of which 264,845 in the United States. The receipts at the interior ports, 3,459; an increase over 1879 of 1,190 bales. The interior stocks, 56,662, an increase of 42,-252 bales. The plantation receipts, 3,612; in 1879, 2,154; in 1878, 1,119 bales; since September 1st, 4,929,404; in 1879, 4,444,765; in 1878, 4,252,464. The price at Liverpool on Friday last was 6 13-16; in 1879, 6 9-16 n 1878, 6 9-16; in 1877, 6 5-16d. The weather the past week has been fairly favorable in most sections, but too much rain and many points. Of general business the Chronicle says: "The season for the opening of autumn trade approaches, and yet buyers seem disposed to proceed with much caution and prudence. Current prices of agricultural products are comparatively low, with little probability of an advance like that which gave such an impulse to business last autumn; hence it is not likely that the agricultural classes will have as much money at command as then, and dealers are disposed to take this into the account. Business is on a sound and healthy basis, however, and, on the whole, the position too low temperature is the complaint at

The New York cotton market last week was severely depressed. The speculation in futures has been strongly towards a lower range of values. Encouraged by favorable crop prospects, large stocks, weak fereign accounts and a dull trade in diate delivery were 2,394 bales, of which 953 for export, 1,381 for consumption, 60

953 for export, 1,381 for consumption, 60 for speculation.

In the breadstuffs market corn was active, but at declining prices; receipts large and crop reports good. The new wheat crop has come on earlier and broken down prices, but continued bad weather in England has renewed speculative confidence. New flour has been more plenty and is offered at declining figures.

In dry goods business was spasmodic and irregular the past week. There was a large force of wholesale buyers in the market, who devoted a fair share of attention ket, who devoted a fair share of attention to the examination of new autumn goods but their operations were less liberal than has frequently been the case at this stage of the season. Under the influence of cenof the season. Under the influence of censiderably lower prices, there was a large movement in wool flannels and Kentucky jeans, and fair sales of dark prints and dress goods were effect d by manufacturers' agents, but staple cotton goods moved slowly and in relatively small quantities. Foreign goods remained inactive in first hands, but there was rather more inquiry for certain fabrics by early buyers. The exports of domestics during the week aggregated 1.675 packages. gregated 1,675 packages.

LATIN SERIES

MILITARY B. L. Gildersleeve, Ph. D., Gottingen, LL.D. Professor of Greek in Johns INSTITUTE Hopkins University, Baltimore. FARMDALE, FRANKLIN CO., KY. Rarely have text-books been greeted with so large a measure of favor and hearty appreciation, as these books by Professor Gildersleeve have received from the best scholastic and educational minds of the country. The author, now of national reputation as a scholar, has had ATTENTION, BOYS! very complete preparation for such a work. After being graduated at Princeton, he studied for several years in the Universities of Germany, where he received his Ph.D., etc., with highest honors. His subsequent life has been devoted to teaching and linguistic study. When the new and richly endowed Johns Hopkins University sought for a fit man for its chair of Greek, the appointment was conferred on Prof. Gildersleeve, after wide conference, and without his solicitation or effort, and his work as senior professor of the University his solicitation or effort, and his work as senior professor of the University attracts marked attention. He is also the presiding officer of the American Philogical Association.

Prof. Gildersleeve's Latin books are the product of this order of ability and educational training. Embodying the best results of recent studies in Latin philology, they are simple, clear and practical in method.

THE LATIN PRIMER

complete in itself, a naturally developed course for beginners, at once holds the interest of the for beginners, at once holds the interest of the pupil, and prepares him thoroughly for ready and intelligent use of Grammar and Reader, or Latin author. It supplies: "Maximum of Forms; Minimum of Syntax; Early Contact with the Language in Mass."

A teacher in one of the leading High Schools of the country, who conducted a large class through this book, writes:

"We have just finished the Primer, having spent upon it this type of the country." "We have just finished the Primer, having spent upon it thirty-four weeks; and I have been trying to realize my pupils' attitude towards the study, as compared with that of other classes I have known. They have the use of a larger vocabulary; their text-book has secured for them a careful drill in the normal terminations; they have been brought more into contact with the language in the concrete, and have, therefore, a more vivid interest in it; and they have been less perplexed by exceptional forms have been less perplexed by exceptional forms and difficult construction. "The book is thoroughly alive, and will per-force make its students so."

THE LATIN GRAMMAR is marked by its genuine scholarship, clear and logical arrangement of material, and a typography that pleasantly aids the eye. Its presentation of forms is plain and convenient; its definitions, rules and other statements are brief and pointed; and its translations of illustrative examples are most striking models for students.

THE LATIN READER has Fables and Stories; "De Gestis Alexandri. has Fables and Stories; "De Gestis Alexandri, a most interesting narrative, chiefly from Curtius; one book of Cæsar's "De Bello Gallico," treated in a manner to make it an admirable drill in Latin Syntax; also notes and References to the Grammar, and a Vecabulary.
